

WHERE IN THE WORLD TO BUY A HOME IN 2017?

Eddie Sikora, Director of the annual Luxury Property Show, shares his tips on the top five countries in the world to buy a luxury home in 2017

5 France
France still offers amazing value for money, especially if you look at more rural locations. I gather that since the BREXIT vote there has been a flurry of enquiries for Paris property from Brits working within the financial services industry, who are looking to relocate to Paris. At the show we have agent Le Bonbien who has a good selection of property for sale in the city and surrounding region.

It is certainly a good time to buy in France as throughout the country, property prices have slowly come down over the past few years and there are currently low interest rates available from French banks.

Other areas that are worth looking at are Languedoc Roussillon, which is a less crowded area than the Riviera but equally great weather in the south of France, and the Dordogne which is beautiful and has a large expat community. The exhibitor La Baraquette is a new luxury resort which is an extension of a lively port-village in the Languedoc.

Languedoc Roussillon is less crowded than the Riviera but has equally great weather